about the learning intention. You've used some beautiful description.
WELL DONE YOU!

Dear Joey,

The ocean was <sup>calm</sup> today. I <sup>was</sup> walking along the beach, I <sup>was</sup> looking for <sup>interesting</sup> things. I <sup>was</sup> carrying a <sup>small</sup> bucket and a <sup>spade</sup> spade. I <sup>was</sup> not wearing a harness. I <sup>was</sup> thinking that I <sup>could</sup> be <sup>harmless</sup> to the animals. I <sup>was</sup> walking on the sand when a <sup>big</sup> wave swept me, my <sup>bucket</sup> and my <sup>spade</sup> spade away. When I <sup>was</sup> looking for my <sup>bucket</sup> bucket, I <sup>was</sup> not knowing where it <sup>was</sup> <sup>gone</sup> gone. I <sup>was</sup> not knowing if I <sup>could</sup> find it. In the <sup>end</sup> end, a <sup>boy</sup> boy covered <sup>my</sup> camera <sup>with</sup> sand. <sup>My</sup> <sup>bucket</sup> bucket was half <sup>gone</sup> gone in the <sup>sand</sup> sand.

well done for editing

I walked over to the camera and picked it up. I opened up the camera and found a film holder. I ~~strided~~ walked to the shop and asked the shopkeeper to take out the photos. I ~~paid~~ gave a ~~fortune~~ <sup>few</sup> pounds just to have the photos taken out in a hour. I sat on the ~~shop~~ bench outside the shop and sat there ~~waiting~~ <sup>waiting</sup>.

What could you use instead of 'I' to start your sentences?

Description is great.
